

Barges - In the song, one line says – ‘starboard shines green and port is glowing red’ . . . It refers to the lights on the right and left sides of the barge. Imagine this girl has a green light in the hand closest to this text and a red light in the hand near the tree. If you could not see her, you could tell she was coming toward you because you would see green light – red light. When she turns with her back to us, how will the lights look different to us? That would tell you that the girl (or the barge, or the plane) is moving AWAY from us. Pretty cool, huh? You can try this with a friend. You can use green and red paper or ribbons or anything you can hold in your hand in those colors. Teach others the terms ‘starboard’ and ‘port’. They will be impressed.
